

MARTIN WINTER'S LIFE

IS A STORY OF DEVOTION TO HIS HOME TOWN.

Gettysburg's Foremost Citizen in Visioning the Future of the Town.

Several times in the past sixteen years, during the present management of the Compiler, there has been good reason to say kind and well deserved words of the enterprise of Martin Winter. One occasion is recalled when Mr. Winter called at the office after receiving and reading his paper and with a smile remarked that few men have the pleasure of reading their obituary notices before they are dead, for it is usual to wait until that time to say all the good things about a man, and then a half humorous argument was indulged in about the wisdom of saying the things a man deserved to have said while he was alive, so as to keep him encouraged to go on doing the things he had planned.

Martin Winter richly deserves to be remembered by this town as the foremost man of his time in the development of his own community and his name should be forever linked with some of the things he has done. Perhaps the creation of Broadway was his best work. That name has no special significance, there are plenty of cities and towns with Broadways. That thoroughfare should be officially rechristened Winter Boulevard in memory of Martin Winter, and a bronze plate erected so designating the street. The town could well afford to make plans to complete the boulevard to the Harrisburg road. The increased taxes he made possible by the development of the North End should be sufficient reason to complete the plans. It was the vision of Martin Winter that has given the town the North End Lincoln Avenue and Broadway, the most attractive residential end of the town. His vision projected the residential park, which it is hoped will materialize and bear his name.

Martin Winter was a native of the town, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Winter. There isn't a man or woman who was a child a half century ago who does not hold in grateful memory the quaint little old man, father of Martin Winter, who presided over the counter of sweetmeats and cookies all children love. They affectionately called him Pete Winter and some first word: "Pete Winter give me a stick of lasses candy." The little old man would wrap a piece of paper around one end to keep hands from being soiled and just enough of the taffy extending to lick and chew.

The man who loved to make sweet bits for the little ones of the town was the father of the boy who came to love Gettysburg as few men love a town, whose constant thought was to develop that town, who spent every dollar often he could place his hands upon toward that development, who forgot self in his efforts to develop the town and make the place a more beautiful place to live, a man who loaded large debt on his shoulders toward the development of his vision. When asked when he was going to get his returns he would laugh as he replied that the returns would come if he lived long enough. Martin Winter planned toward his visions with a full realization that he would not live long enough to see them realized. The reading of his will tells that.

Martin Winter received his early education in this place, then went to Westminster where he earned money enough to pay his way through Baltimore Business College for a year. He then returned to this place. Soon after locating here came the fire destroying the old family home. He rebuilt and gave the town the first large store room. He became interested in real estate along with his insurance business and projected Lincoln avenue and built the first houses on the street. He next bought the ten acres of the Samuel Wolf estate along the east side of the town, projected streets and started the sale of lots being the first to start the development of the town in that direction. His next move was the creation of Broadway and he had in vision the eastern extension of that avenue and the residential park. With Hon. D. P. McPherson he erected the block of ten modern houses on North Stratton street. One of his last efforts was the purchase of land west of Seminary Ridge along Fairfield road and projecting development there.

Martin Winter was a man of broad sympathies, making a contribution to the endowment fund of Gettysburg College just as quickly as he would have done for his own Church. He was progressive in his views of town development far beyond his town. He had faith and confidence in his visions and willing to back them with his means. He had pleasant manners and was the last man to desire to give offense, and had many warm admirers and friends.

Mr. Winter had been failing for the past year yet was uncompromising. He had served the town twice as a town councilman, for a term of some years ago and was a member of that body at the time of his death.

He was a devout member of St. Francis Xavier Church and one of the liberal supporters of his Church and all activities.

The funeral was held on Monday morning from the church with a requiem high mass celebrated by Rev. Fr. Boyle, Charles W. Stock singing the solo part of the mass. Miss Zita Ramer sang "One Sweet Solemn Thought." The interment was made in the Catholic Cemetery. The pallbearers were John W. Brehm, Geo. F. Eberhart, John W. McDonnell, Penrose Myers, Russel Nunemaker and George Groft.

The honorary pallbearers were Hon. D. P. McPherson, Hon. S. McC. Swope, Charles E. Stahl, Esq., John M. Blocher, Wm. Arch. McClean, Esq., and H. C. Picking.

Martin Winter's Will.

The will of Martin Winter was probated this week in the office of Registrar of Wills C. W. Gardner. The will was made in 1911 and Hon. D. P. McPherson was named as the executor. He provides for legacies of $100 each to Miss Mary L. Ramer, Miss Ella Brinkerhoff, now Mrs. Edward Eckenrode, of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Andrew Little. He provides an annuity for his sister, Miss Mary Winter, of Emmitsburg, of $350, and one of $150 for his brother, Joseph Winter, of New Oxford. He provides $200 for masses, $200 for maintenance of Jacobs, Case and Winter lots in the Catholic Cemetery, and $100 toward the construction of a dwelling house for the sexton of St. Francis Xavier Church and cemetery, the house to be located at latter point.

The vision of a more beautiful Gettysburg is with him throughout his last will. The executor is given authority not to sacrifice his holdings of real estate, ten years can be taken to dispose of his lands on the eastern end of the town and fifteen years at the northern end, streets and avenues can be opened as the judgment of executor may dictate. Lots are to be sold with condition that houses are erected a certain distance from pavement line, as he provided in his conveyances. The executor has the power to develop the residential park. When, however, all his holdings are sold, and his debts are paid, the residue of his estate, which practically means his entire net estate, will go to the "Society for the propagation of the Faith" of New York, to be applied to mission work among Negroes and Indians in the United States of America.

The real and personal estate of Martin Winter is estimated as worth $105,000 and that the clear net value may be over $40,000.

New Health Officer for Town.

State Health Department and the Board of Health of Gettysburg are at work in harmonious relations. On Tuesday evening the local Board of Health, John W. Brehm, Dr. H. M. Hartman, Dr. C. G. Crist, Charles S. Speece and Rev. W. R. Glen, met with C. W. Webber of the State Board of Health and the three conditions desired by the latter were either found provided for or agreed to then.

The unexpended balance of last year's appropriation was paid to the State.

The piggyback ordinance, which is being advertised in another column, was passed as suggested by Town Council, by the State Board of Health.

The last condition provided for a health zone to extend for five miles in every direction from camp, including Gettysburg. A State doctor will be placed in charge and will be paid by the State. The inspector who will work with him will also have the positions in the town formerly held by the secretary of the board and health officer, and will receive a salary of not more than $1000, one-half to be paid by State and the other half by the borough. This last condition was adopted by the Local Board at the Tuesday evening meeting.

Carriage Plant Sold.

S. D. Mehling has sold his carriage factory in Littlestown to J. H. Weaver and buildings will be remodeled for a cigar factory. Mr. Mehling will retire after an active business life covering a period of 43 years. He learned the carriage making business with Seil & Blocher, of Littlestown. In 1875 he formed a partnership with Frank Hesson which lasted 3 years, and Mr. Mehling continued to manufacture carriage wood work. In 1880 he began the manufacture of carriages and made it one of the largest industries in Littlestown, expanding it as necessities required. The growing automobile business, scarcity of mechanics and young men leaving Littlestown, brought about the sale of the plant.

Big Lutheran Day November 15.

Friday, November 15, 1918, is going to be a day ever memorable in the history of the Lutheran denomination of this country, for on that day will be held a special jubilee celebration of the merger of three large Lutheran bodies, the General Synod, the General Council, and the United Synod of the South. The merger has been practically unanimous. The new body will be known as the United Lutheran Church of America, and will embrace 1,300,000 communicants. There are yet a number of other Lutheran bodies in the United States, but these will retain their distinctive characteristics. The merger will result in great saving and be of decided advantage in the consolidation of weak churches.

Escaped Prisoners Recaptured.

Three prisoners walked out of jail in broad day-light last Thursday afternoon. Sheriff Hartman is a very busy official, much more of his time being taken up by duties connected with the Local War Board than with his duties at the jail. He has depended upon trustees who have been prisoners at the jail. The Sheriff needs a deputy or trusty who is not a prisoner and who would be on the job all the time. The only reason there was not a general jail delivery last Thursday afternoon was because a half dozen prisoners preferred to stay rather than go with the three who escaped.

The three who escaped were James Williams, charged with receiving a stolen automobile, Mary Morrison, a mulatto, who has been hanging around camp to the annoyance of soldiers, and Raymond Conley, of the Pigeon Hills, charged with raising an order of the Supervisors to a larger amount than that for which given. According to the best information the Conley boy secured a pliers and gave them to the mulatto girl, who passed them to Williams, with which latter broke the lock of his door and secured his freedom. The three left by the kitchen and High street. The escape was between three and four o'clock in the afternoon.

The three prisoners have been captured. The first one apprehended was the Morrison girl, who was overtaken three or four miles from town on the Emmitsburg road.

District Attorney Topper was on his way to Harrisburg Friday morning and a short distance from Harrisburg a young man walking and carrying a bundle was recognized as Jimmy Williams. The District Attorney invited him to a lift by a ride to York Springs and Jimmy played the bluff of getting in on the supposition he was not recognized, but found out to the contrary when delivered over to Constable Pittenuri, who held him until Sheriff Hartman arrived and took charge of the prisoner. Williams said he had spent the night at the Lincoln Way Hotel and received a lift to Heidersburg in the side car of a motorcycle. Sheriff Hartman and Norman King securing the Conley boy on Saturday evening at his home in the Pigeon Hills. When the Sheriff arrived younger members of the family tried to sidetrack the Sheriff. That official left but when the automobile was out of sight, returned on foot to the house and surprised the inmates and found the boy in the house.

Sheriff Hartman declares Jimmy Williams, 21 years of age, to be the slickest article in jail during his term. The young fellow admits being the fence for stolen automobiles and the State Police looked upon his capture as a very important one and one that might help to locate a bold band of auto thieves operating in this State.

Death of Two Camp Colt Soldiers.

Camp Colt has had two deaths within a period of ten days. Horatio Powell, private in a Tank Battalion, was taken to the Chambersburg Hospital for an operation for appendicitis. He died shortly after the operation. He enlisted at Chicago and his parents reached here about the same time he passed away at the hospital. He leaves a wife and child.

William T. Lusby, a private in Co. A, 327th Light Tank Battalion, of Washington, D. C., was killed on Monday afternoon. He was in a practice machine gun drill back of Round Top. A cap accidentally exploded and he was struck in the abdomen by a fragment of steel and died an hour later at the camp hospital.

Four other men were injured but not seriously by the same explosion. Corporal Donin, of Minnesota, was struck in the left side. Private Hugo Johnson, of Vermont, was hit in the neck. Corporal Maxfield on the right wrist, and a fourth soldier had a slight flesh wound.

Called to City Church.

Dr. L. L. Sieber has received a call to become pastor of the Luther Memorial Church of Baltimore, and has given notice to the church council of his acceptance. Dr. Sieber has been supplying this pulpit for several months and will now take up his duties there regularly. The church to which Dr. Sieber has been called is in North Baltimore and the congregation has recently purchased a new site upon which a handsome new church edifice will be erected in the near future. Dr. and Mrs. Sieber will not occupy their Baltimore residence until early in the fall.

Miss Briel is Red Cross Nurse.

Miss Kate Briel, Gettysburg's District Nurse, has received official notice that she has been accepted as a Red Cross Nurse by the National Society of the American Red Cross, to which she made application and offered her services several weeks ago. Miss Briel is now entitled to wear the official uniform and insignia of the A. R. C. nurses and fortunately for this community she has been assigned to Gettysburg and will be able to continue her work here.

Low Summer Temperature.

The first half of July, 1918, was below the normal temperature, the mean temperature of July has not been below 73 degrees for 20 years.

In order to come up to a mean month will have to be above 90 degrees from the 16th to the 31st, and above 68 degrees every night.

BASTILLE DAY JULY 14

CELEBRATED WIDELY IN AMERICA LAST SUNDAY.

Hon. James M. Beck Makes Delightfully Interesting Address at the Philadelphia Celebration.

The celebration of Bastille Day in United States on Sunday, July 14, when in over one hundred American cities services were held as a memorial to the great French nation, found its best expression in the oration of Hon. James M. Beck, a former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, in Philadelphia. Among other things he said:

"There are truths too great for either thought or words. The mind has never yet grasped the immensity of the stellar universe nor can it comprehend the full import of the idea of justice. As the stellar universe is composed of millions of worlds, so the grandeur of France at this hour is compounded of the sweat and tears of millions of French men, women and children. We imperfectly grasp the immensity of her self-sacrifice and heroic endurance by personal knowledge of concrete individual cases, but the aggregate defies expression and baffles the imagination."

"This high festival day is unique in the annals of America. More than one hundred American cities are now uniting with us in expressing the affection and gratitude of one hundred millions of Americans for our noble ally. The better part of civilization joins in this tribute, and no such tribute has ever been paid to any nation as has been this day given to France. This is her richest compensation in her hour of supreme ordeal and tragic suffering."

"Above all it should never be forgotten that the great event of July the 14th was a reflex of the great event of July 4th, when our fathers met in Independence Hall, and to the sounding of the bell in the historic belfry, proclaimed 'Liberty' throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof. This protest of democracy against every form of tyranny over the mind and soul of man was caught up and prolonged by the good people of Paris when 129 years ago to-day they stormed the Bastille. Modern history does not record two greater events and the connection between them is indissoluble. July the 4th and July the 14th are holy days in the history of freedom, and it must stir our souls to their very depths to reflect to-night that the children of the men who proclaimed the Declaration of Independence and the children of those who seized the Bastille are now fighting side by side to make effective a greater declaration of independence and to raze to the very ground that greater Bastille—the feudal fortress of Prussian tyranny."

"This is the hour of France's triumph. America and the world tonight hail her as a victor, and notwithstanding the critical nature of the hour, a victor France is, I say this without any illusions as to the gravity of the present crisis, which cannot easily be overestimated. The present is an hour of tragic suffering and supreme danger for France. A ruthless enemy is at her gates. To her the danger was never greater since that September when Joffre and his poilus rolled back the invader from the banks of the Marne. The hour is as critical as when on that same heroic battlefield the Gauls and the Latins drove back Attila and his Huns, or when Charles Martel with his thunder hammer drove back the Saracens from the sacred soil of France. The soul sickens at the possibility of the destruction of Paris, for if Paris were to be destroyed, with all her noble temples of industry, science and art, the loveliest light in civilization would be extinguished, and what Prometheus heat could ever that light relume? The hour is to thinking men one of acute anxiety. The only consolation is the justice of our cause and our sublime faith that chiefly through the valor and endurance of France the invader shall not pass."

"How then can I acclaim France as a victor to-night? Every war has two aspects, a spiritual and a material. Of these the former, measured by the eternal verities of the ages, is the more important. From this higher and more enduring standard the result of this war is not in doubt. France and her allies are the undoubted victors, not only because the irreversible judgment of mankind has sustained the righteousness of their quarrel, but because they have shown an infinite moral superiority to their cruel and unscrupulous enemy."

"The moral forces of civilization have a greater persistence than the destructive power of chemistry, and as Emerson somewhere points out, in the long run the moral always triumphs and destroys that which is immoral. If this be true there can be no doubt as to France's victory to-night. Tonight Prussia stands as a convicted criminal at the bar of civilization and all the roar of Hindenburg's cannon cannot silence the rising storm of execration against the criminal nation. Upon her brow is the brand of Cain, and is it not significant that when Cain slew Abel the Deity did not destroy Cain, but simply drove him forth as an outcast? Cain could have accepted the forfeit of his life, but the sense of exile, wrung from him the terrible cry, 'My punishment is greater than I can bear.' I venture the prediction, without regard to the result of the present battle now raging at the gates of Paris, that as long as any man now living survives, Germany, with remorse forever gnawing like a vulture at her vitals as she feels increasingly the terrible weight of the world's condemnation, will cry, 'My punishment is greater than I can bear.' If you would seek to realize the victory of France compare with this her position, in the world. To-night every nation, including Germany, respects France, and every nation, with the exception of Germany and her allies, loves France; while to-night there is not a nation in the world that loves Germany, and only her vassal allies can be said to respect her in the sense that the slave respects the lash of the slave-driver. The noblest living poet of France has forever symbolized her moral grandeur in his exquisitely beautiful, dramatic allegory of Chanticleer. That brave and gentle idealist is the France that the world in the last three years has grown to know and to love. In his generous enthusiasm Chanticleer believes his lusty crow causes the sun to rise, and France has always had something of the same illusion. And yet, as Chanticleer's crow precedes the dawn, France can claim on this, the natal day of her republic, that when in the storm of the French Revolution she proclaimed the great ideal of liberty, equality and fraternity the night began to break and the glorious morning of democracy was first seen in the eastern skies; for France, as Chanticleer can say, 'I have such faith that my song will make night crumble like the walls of Jericho that, sounding its victory beforehand, my song springs forth so clear, so proud, so peremptory that the horizon, seized with a rosy trembling, obeys. It was this spirit of the Gallic cock that triumphed at the Marne, the Meuse, the Aisne and the Yser and will yet triumph at the gates of Paris. France has 'fought the good fight' and has 'kept the faith' and she shall have her reward in the fullness of time. The night is long and the way is hard, but the sons of France will yet march down the Unter den Linden to the inspiring strains of the 'Marseillaise' and will stack their victorious arms in triumph under that balcony of the Royal Palace from which the Kaiser preached this accursed war. But whether this shall happen or not, all the forces of chemistry and all the powers of hell cannot alter the moral triumph which France now enjoys and the moral defeat of her adversary."

Rather Amusing.

The way some people take themselves so seriously is rather amusing. The proprietor of the "Gettysburg Times" in its issue of last Saturday corrected the Compiler, calling us a local exchange, for creating a new army in giving Major Scott's title as Judge Advocate General Reserve Army with the rank of major. Of course, not having the military education of one who went through a training camp to receive a commission, and afterwards be "discharged for disability," quoting from the "Times"—"disabilities are either physical or mental—it was hardly worth while noting there was error in using the word 'army' instead of 'corps.' However, after such a grandiloquent correction from one who had so recently escaped from a second lieutenant's commission, it is decidedly funny to hear the statement that Mr. Scott's commission is that of a major in the Advocate General's Department of the Reserve Corps. There is no such department. Would it be asking too much of the proprietor of the "Times," who has been somewhat personally concerned in the "more or less active" "equity practice" of Mr. Scott, to make the correction that Major Scott is a Major in the Judge Advocate General's Reserve Corps, for he eminently deserves it, among other reasons, for his notable success in the aforesaid "equity practice."

Prof. Harbold Resigns.

Prof. P. M. Harbold has given his resignation as President of Millersville State Normal School to the Board of Directors of that institution. Prof. Harbold is well known to Adams County where he has frequently been one of the instructors at the County Institute. Supreme Court Decision.

The Supreme Court filed opinions in two cases in which the community is interested.

In the case of Eline vs. Western Maryland Railway Co., in which plaintiff received a verdict of $10000 from an Adams county jury, was affirmed.

In the mandamus case of the Town Council of Gettysburg to compel the Highway Commissioner to repair Chambersburg and Baltimore streets, the appeal was dismissed, which affirms the decision of the Dauphin Court that the obligation of repair is on the Borough.

Save Coal

Uncle Sam needs it for war purposes. Every ton you save this summer can be used to heat your home next winter. Save it.

One way is to use an oil cook stove instead of the coal range. That won't be a hardship, but a big advantage. That is if you buy the right oil cook stove.

NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK-STOVES

are now giving satisfactory service in millions of American homes. A New Perfection will give you this same satisfactory service—a really better service (especially in hot weather) than your coal range ever has or ever will. You don't have coal or wood to carry—no dusty ashes to fly all over. And a New Perfection does not make the kitchen almost unbearably hot like a range does. But it will boil and fry and bake things just as you like them. It's always ready at the scratch of a match. You'll be delighted with the splendid results.

Besides, it burns a most economical fuel—kerosene. But the kind of kerosene you use makes a big difference. All kerosenes are not alike in quality. To be sure of always getting best results use Atlantic Rayolight Oil. Buy it at the store that displays this sign "Atlantic Rayolight Oil For Sale Here." It costs no more than ordinary kinds but it's worth more. Go to your nearest dealer now and select your New Perfection Oil Cook Stove.

Wouldn't Let Wife Eat With Him.

Mrs. Lida L. James of Pockskill seriously objected to eating at the "second table," even though so ordered to do by her husband, Herbert James, and so she went after a divorce. Furthermore, she got it. Supreme Court Justice Tompkins of White Plains had never heard of a marriage contract calling upon a wife to eat after her husband and children had devoured all the "white meat." That's why he was so generous with his divorce.

James owns a summer resort comprising a 50-acre park. After a good many years he grew tired of looking at his wife across the table and so ordered her to provide herself with material sustenance after the rest of them had pushed back the finger bowls.

Rushing War Equipment.

Supplementing President Wilson's announcement last week that more than 1,000,000 American troops have embarked for France, Chairman Dent of the Military Committee, laid before the house a review of war preparations during the fifteen months of war, prepared by Secretary Baker.

It showed that there are now 160,400 officers and 2,010,000 men with the colors, compared with a total of 9524 officers and 202,510 men in the Regulars and National Guard fourteen months ago.

The statement shows that 286 combat airplanes had been delivered up to June 8, and that the production rate of this type then was eighty per week. More than 2000 Liberty motors have been delivered and the weekly production rate was 115 during the first week in June.

More than 900 heavy Browning machine guns were delivered during May and the deliveries for that month of light Brownings totaled 1800.

"Sufficient rifles are now being received," the statement says, "to equip an army division every three days. More than 1,300,000 rifles had been produced and delivered up to June 1."

CZECH FRONT RECOGNIZED.

Petain's Men Capture Corcy—British South of the Somme Also Drive Enemy Back—Czechs Control Western Siberia.

Paris.—The allied forces have again thrown the Austrians back in Albania. The Teutons are retreating toward the Skumbi river, which lies 25 miles beyond the newly captured positions on the Voyuse, near Berat. The Italians have taken 250 additional prisoners.

The French on the right of the Italians have advanced five miles down the Tomorica valley, capturing the village of Dobreni.

The French are continuing their nibbling tactics on the west wing of the Champagne salient. They have advanced again slightly east of Villers-Cotterets forest, completing the occupation of the village of Corcy, which they reached on the previous day, capturing the railroad station at Corcy and the chateau and farm of St. Paul. Fifty Germans were taken prisoners.

The British forces on the Somme have again improved their lines east of Villers-Bretonneux, near the scene of the recent Australian advances. The German guns answered the new advances, but there was no infantry counter blow.

The Bolsheviks for the first time acknowledge the existence of a "Czecho-Slovak front." Allusion to this appears in the first official Bolshevik communique, which announces great victories.

Armies sent against the Czecho-Slovak and White Guards have captured the cities of Syzran and Bugulma, the communique says, and are approaching Stavropol, on the front east of Moscow along the Transsiberian railway, and northeast of Moscow are advancing toward Yaroslavl and Rybinsk. The Czecho-Slovaks are said to be retiring across the Volga in disorder.

A later Bolshevik statement says General Muraviev, leader of the Bolshevik forces, committed suicide after a vain attempt to lead his forces against Moscow and "upset the Bolshe-

Following the landing of allied forces on the Murman coast, the Bolsheviks have ordered a hurried mobilization to oppose them, says a Stockholm dispatch. Three hundred Serbian and Italian officers in Archangel have been arrested on the order of Premier Lenin.

Since the Germans entered Finland 73,000 workmen there have been arrested, and many of them have been executed, Hugo Haase, leader of the minority Socialists, asserted in a recent speech in the Reichstag, according to a verbatim published by the Het-volk. The deputy also criticized German rule in Livonia and Estonia. Deputy Haas said, "The list of those sentenced to death in Finland contains the names of a former premier and 50 Socialists, members of parliament, some of whom already have been shot."

U BOAT MENACE LESSENED.

Fewer in Operation Than at Any Time This Summer.

London.—A British naval authority, discussing Vice Admiral Sims' statement that the submarine menace is well in hand and that the U boats are being destroyed faster than they are being built, and Admiral Jellicoe's reiteration of his prediction that August would see the end of submarine effectiveness, said there had been a marked decrease in submarine activity.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

Italians have captured Berat, the most important town in Southern Albania, and the French are co-operating with them in clearing the country of the enemy, who are fleeing toward Elbasan and Durazzo. The allied line is now complete from the Adriatic through Albania and Macedonia to the Aegean Sea, and a great offensive is expected.

Washington believes that the German high command has met serious obstacles in renewing the western drive, as every day's delay works against the success of the scheme to force military decision this year.

Maj. J. B. McCudden, one of Britain's champion aviators, was killed when his machine fell from a low altitude just after leaving its hangar in France. He had at least 54 air victories to his credit and had won all military decorations.

Representatives now in Copenhagen of the Estonian diet and government have sent a strong protest to Germany against Germany's occupation policy and oppression in that Baltic province. Mr. Morris, the American minister to Sweden, has sent to President Wilson a copy of the protest.

AMERICAN FARMER HAS FED ALLIES

Producer and Consumer Working Together Has Achieved Victory For Democracy.

The American people have achieved a victory for democracy. They have proved they can govern themselves. Through all sorts of agencies the United States Food Administration has endeavored to bring home to the nation the vital necessity for sending wheat, meat, fats and sugar "over there."

What has been the response?

Before the war we used to send across about $5 million pounds of pork products every month. In 1918, before we were really "in it," there was a great demand, and so we began to send more. We even got up to 121,000,000 pounds a month. But our herds of hogs decreased in doing this, for we were increasing our own consumption to a great extent. That meant that there had to be a big change somewhere and so, in the latter half of 1917, even with all our conservation, we got up only to 74 million pounds a month.

Now comes the startling part of the story. Today, with practically the same herd of hogs in relation to the population that we had before the war, we are exporting about 225 million pounds every month that is more than three times as much as in peace times.

As for beef, before the war we used to send over 17,000,000 pounds a month, while today we are shipping 70,000,000 pounds a month.

Perhaps wheat has been our big problem. We have realized how very important it is to give the Allies wheat. To them, the "staff of life," the "daily bread" of their prayers, is the wheat loaf. Our wheat crop of 1917 was larger than the 1916 crop, but it was more than one hundred and fifty-five million bushels less than the average production for the years 1911 to 1913. If we had eaten as much as we usually do, we would have had only twenty million bushels to send abroad.

We realized then, and we are still realizing, that we must not eat as much as usual. We have sent one hundred and twenty million bushels and by September 1 we will have increased this total amount by many millions.

Let the German militarists still argue that "democracy is a failure." They do not know the democracy of America!

"There is no doubt that thousands of tons of ice are wasted every summer and a large part of this waste is avoidable."

GIVE YOUR MOTOR THE HY-SIGN

THEN WATCH IT PICK UP AND HUSTLE. SURVIVAL TO CARBON!

Friend Abbott: We don't have to tell you anything about carbon, the great standard motor cure which you "use out," but seldom entirely cut out of your motor. At that carbon is great trouble in its place. Thus it may be life to the electric light—while it is death to gasoline motor efficiency.

You should do what thousands of satisfied motorists are doing. They give their motors HY-SIGN CARBON REMOVER and find it is sure death to carbon.

HY-SIGN improves the quality of your "gas," giving 25% to 40% more mileage on same amount of gasoline—thus making for greater increased efficiency and economy these war times of high gasoline prices.

Give your dealer the HY-SIGN. Then give your motor the HY-SIGN, and note how gratefully it gives you the very best of speed, power and mileage.

HY-SIGN has proved all that is claimed for it by exhaustive tests. BOX CONTAINING 24 cubes, $1.00 for 120 gallons of gasoline.

WAR BULLETINS

In a sudden attack in Picardy the French advance on a three mile front to a depth of a mile and a quarter, capture the village of Castel. Auchin farm and a number of enemy strong points. South of the Aisne they occupy the village of Longpont.

Advancing rapidly on the Albanian front, the combined forces of the Italians and French are driving the Austrians back on the Skumbi river, which is 25 miles north of Berat, where some of the heaviest fighting has taken place. The Austrians assert, however, in an official dispatch from Vienna that they are forming a new line of defense.

The French have captured the village of Corcy, southwest of Soissons, and the British have pushed their line forward east of Villers-Bretonneux, on the American front.

General Foch continued his process of battering in the western side of the Marne sullen. He has pushed his forces as far as the outskirts of Longpont on the main double track railway between Soissons and Villers-Cotterets and has crossed the railway and entered Corcy, two miles farther southwest.

General Pershing in his daily communique comments on abnormal troop movements in the enemy rear areas in the Marne and Alsace districts.

WASHINGTON

President Wilson vetoed the agricultural appropriation bill because it raised the price of wheat from $2.20 a bushel to $2.40. He declared the price specified would increase the cost of living; that allied governments would be forced to pay a higher price with money borrowed from the United States.

Nation wide propaganda for conservation of platinum is advocated by two New York men before the House Ways and Means Committee, which is framing the new eight billion dollar revenue bill. A prohibitive tax on the use of platinum in jewelry is urged.

The wire control resolution is attacked in the senate on the ground that it would increase the censorship powers of Mr. Burleson, postmaster general. A vote on the resolution is considered possible shortly, but not probable for several days.

The Federal Reserve estimates the country's gain in gold stock since August 1, 1914, at $1,039,078,000.

A "bone dry" nation after January 1 was indicated by a test vote in the senate, while simultaneously Dr. Garfield, fuel administrator, issued an order cutting off coal to breweries.

A pillory was placed in a public square in Birmingham, Ala., by men who were unknown. A sign over the pillory read: "For slackers, pro-Germans, profiteers, utterers of sedition and loafers."

German-American War

A German military critic after a long discussion of Secretary Baker's announcement that there were a million American soldiers overseas ventured the opinion that "it can't be done." He declared he didn't believe the figures and as an after thought modestly stated, "We can beat them anyway."

General Pershing reports that five American airplanes have failed to return from a bombing expedition. Berlin reports which, on Thursday, said five American machines were captured with their crews, now assert that all of a group of six were brought down and captured.

German general in a newspaper article questions truth of Mr. Baker's figures on the number of American soldiers sent overseas. He asserts that America "cannot send a really imposing force inside of two or three years."

Rumors of a shortage of medical supplies for the navy were denied by Secretary Daniels.

Investigation of the Rumely case by secret service agents is said to have revealed an "inner circle" of prominent men for financing and conducting the Kaiser's propaganda in America and that funds for this purpose are still pouring in and still being used.

Secretary Baker sent an appeal to General Pershing asking for better mail service for troops in France.

SENATE VOTES DRY

Immediate Prohibition Wins on Test 36 to 33.

Garfield Rules No Fuel Will Go to Maltsters When Supplies on Hand Are Gone.

Washington.—The drys won two victories in Washington on the same day.

The senate, by a vote of 36 to 33, decided that the drastic prohibition amendment was germane to the $11,000,000 emergency agricultural bill. This means that the amendment, which prohibits the sale of all alcoholic beverages—except for export—after December 31 and which forbids the use of food or fruits for the making of wine or beer after the 1st of November, will almost certainly become law unless President Wilson vetoes it.

Later in the day the fuel administration announced that breweries could not count on a supply of coal after their present stocks of materials are exhausted. This would close the breweries down in less than eight months, it was estimated here, whether President Wilson should veto the bone dry agricultural stimulation bill or not.

The coal shortage is the sole reason given for the fuel administration's action. Officials of the fuel administration estimate that there is eight months' supply of malt now stored in this country. This will mean that unless the fuel administration order is rescinded all brewers and manufacturers of "near beers" will suspend operations within that time.

Fuel administration officials estimate that the brewing industry in the United States consumes about 3,300,000 tons of coal annually. The industry is listed as the third largest fuel consumer in the nonwar class, only the building trades and the paper industry being larger.

The order issued takes precedence over the order of July 3, which limited fuel consumption in the brewing industry to 50 per cent. of normal. The new order placing a total prohibition on fuel used by the brewers at the end of the eight months' period bears the endorsement of Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board, Vance McCormick, head of the War Trade Board, and Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover. Before its final promulgation it further received the personal endorsement of President Wilson.

It is understood that Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will object to prohibition on the ground that it will cut government war revenues to a huge extent.

TURKISH SOLDIERS MUTINY.

German Officers Said to Have Been Murdered.

Athens.—According to an uncensored private letter dated June 18 and smuggled out of Smyrna, on the Asia Minor coast, a regiment in the Turkish vifayet of Aidin, southeast of Smyrna, which had been ordered to Mesopotamia, mutinied and murdered its German officers. Many soldiers from regiments sent to suppress the mutiny joined the rebellious troops, the letter asserts.

BIG RICE ACREAGE INCREASE.

South Planted 1,130,717 Acres Against 978,107 in 1917.

Beaumont, Tex.—The preliminary estimate of the Rice Millers' Association gives the total rice acreage in the South this year as 1,130,717, compared with 978,107 acres last year.

The acreage of the three principal rice producing states, Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, exceeds the entire 1917 acreage in the United States, according to the estimate, which has just been published.

AMERICANS DRIVE THE HUNS BACK

Capture Thousand Prisoners
Including Brigade Staff.

FOUGHT TO THE DEATH

While The French Positions Were Penetrated To Some Extent, The Americans In A Smashing Counter-Attack Cleared Their Section Of The Invaders.

American Army on the Marne.—The German prisoners captured in the counter-attack by the Americans at the bend on the Marne number between 1,000 and 1,500. They include a complete brigade staff.

The fighting continues with fierce intensity in this district, while the battle rages with equal ferocity on the right, where the French are reported to have delivered a smashing blow against the enemy. From this section of the battlefield it appears that the German offensive, at least for the time being, has been badly shattered.

The Americans now command the river front at the bend. At the left of the bend, the famous German Tenth Division has made repeated attempts all day to cross, but all assaults have been smashed by the splendidly directed fire of the American gunners.

Gives Credit To The Americans.

Paris.—In the desperate fighting which is reported in the official communication from the War Office, the American troops are given the credit for driving back the Germans who had succeeded in crossing the Marne southwest of Fossey.

In the long sector between Dormans and Rheims Franco-Italian troops are reported to be resisting the German assault valiantly and east of Rheims the enemy attack has met what is characterized as "an irreducible defense."

The statement says: "The German attack launched at 4:30 o'clock A. M. continued throughout the day on both sides of Rheims with equal violence."

West of Rheims desperate engagements were fought in the region of Reully, Courthezy and Vassy, south of the Marne, which the enemy succeeded in crossing at several points between Fossey and Dormans.

"A spirited center attack carried out by the American troops drove back on the right bank of the river enemy contingents who had reached the bank southwest of Fossey."

"Between Dormans and Rheims the Franco-Italian troops resisted with tenacity along the line of Cantillon Sur Marne, Cuchery, Marfaux and Bouilly."

"East of Rheims the enemy attack, which extended from Sillery to the Main de Massiges, hit up against an irreducible defense. The enemy multiplied his efforts on Prunay and Les Marquises and in the regions north of Proemes and Souain, but was not able, despite repeated attacks, to cut into our combat positions."

Launched At Daylight.

American Army on the Marne.—The Germans at daylight launched a violent attack against the American positions west of Chateau Thierry, especially near Vaux. The attack came after a most violent bombardment of high explosives and gas shells throughout the night. The American troops sought shelter wherever it was available. When the enemy infantry appeared the Americans swarmed out and met the attackers with a rain of machine bullets. The Americans wore their gas masks as they fought the attacking Germans.

An enemy bombardment of towns in the rear of the lines began shortly after 6 A. M.

Reports from American advance positions said that the American troops were "handling the enemy well" in the desperate fighting which is continuing. Heavy shells from German naval guns are falling in regions far behind the actual battle area, many of these projectiles having fallen in the city of Meaux, 25 miles from Chateau Thierry. In many of these towns the German shell fire is constant, the projectiles being from 10 and 12-inch naval guns.

The American forces on this front delivered a counter-attack upon the Germans in the Vaux region and drove off the enemy.

It is clear that the German attack in the Vaux region completely broke down under the American counter-attack. Further sharp fighting is likely to develop in this area at any time, however.

Reports from Vaux indicate that the Americans had advanced their line in this region in the face of the determined enemy attack. The advance extended a distance of approximately 700 yards, but the Americans subsequently withdrew to their original line for strategic reasons. Twenty-eight Germans were taken prisoner in this sector.

The American barrage here broke up the enemy waves and drove them back in confusion.

The Sheely Brothers Barn Wind Storm Loss

This barn, a new one, was one of the largest, the best built, the most up-to-date barn in Southern Pennsylvania, yet it did not withstand the wind storm, and the loss is thousands of dollars.

The loss is partly covered by cyclone insurance issued at Martin Winter's office.

The cost of this kind of insurance on a farm barn is $3.75 per $1000 insurance for three years (the rate on houses being over).

The question therefore for every property owner is:

Does it pay to rise the loss of $1000 for three long years to save $3.75.

It requires less than five minutes to destroy a barn, and there are a good many five minute periods in three years.

Baldness Conquered

RECIPE MAILED FREE

A veteran business man, who was almost completely bald and had tried numerous tonics, lotions, shampoos, etc., without benefit, came across, while on a journey, an Indians' recipe by which he grew a complete crop of healthy, luxuriant hair that he now possesses. Others—men and women—have reported remarkable hair growth by the same method. Whoever wishes the recipe may obtain it free by writing to John Hart Brittain, B.A.-222, Station F, New York, N. Y. Or obtain a box of the ointment, Kotakko, made according to the perfected recipe, at the drug store, ready for use.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth
In a vast number of cases, when hair falls out, the roots are not dead, but remain imbedded in the scalp, alive, like seeds or bulbs, needing only fertility. The usual alkaline shampoos, alcoholized hair tonics, etc., are of no avail in such cases. The Indians' ointment nourishes the hair and stimulates the growth.
Kotakko fertilizes the scalp and induces hair growth in every case possible; wonderful results reported. For men's, women's and children's hair. If you are bald, or losing hair, or have dandruff, you should try Kotakko. It is a pleasure to observe the starting of new hair and its steady increase until a prolific growth supersedes thin hair or baldness. Cut out this notice; show to others who want beautiful hair. The recipe is free. This is genuine.

PROS-TONE "THE UTAH SECRET"

is one of those "once-in-a-lifetime" discoveries that seem to have been sent to a waiting world at stated periods—the milestones which mark the world's enlightened progress. PROS-TONE is the life monument of achievement to the credit of a physician who prescribed the formula for diseases of a nervous origin and for kidney and bladder troubles for thirty years in private practice. He first used it to relieve kidney and bladder diseases which afflicted the great western railroads of which he was the physician. His great success led to its extended use for nervous disorders by the patients of the Keely Institute of Salt Lake, Utah. Results were so wonderfully beneficial, the good doctor finally decided his duty toward mankind was to lay it to the world, and PROS-TONE would REALLY DO. He was influenced in his decision to disclose his great secret of renewed health and vitality by two most influential members of the medical fraternity who had used the formula of PROS-TONE in their private practice and were astounded by the wonderful results obtained. One was the Dean of an eastern Medical College and the other a member of the faculty of another college. The result of their combined experience and judgement was the improved formula under which PROS-TONE is now made.

If you cannot get PROS-TONE at your druggist's in order that we may be able to acquaint you more fully as to what it WILL REALLY ACCOMPLISH—
We will mail you FREE on receipt of 10 cents in stamps or coin a receipt of 10 cents for PROS-TONE for three days trial and full directions. We want all victims of nervousness, falling powers, kidney and bladder troubles, to know PROS-TONE, TO KNOW THE GREAT UTAH SECRET of health and vitality—to reap its multitudinous benefits.

MINIMUM WAGE AND 8-HOUR DAY

United States Labor Board Fixes 40 Cents an Hour in Eight Plants.

AFFECTS WAR INDUSTRIES.

Settlement of Other Disputes Applies Basis Eight-Hour Day—Will Decide Lowest "Living Wage" for Workers Generally.

Washington.—Five policies of far-reaching consequence in the employment of labor were laid down by the National War Labor Board. They were:

1. Approval of the principle of the eight-hour day.
2. Insistence on the payment of labor of a "living wage."
3. Disapproval of the employment of children under fourteen years of age on government contracts.
4. Disapproval of the direct or indirect employment on government contracts of prisoners who have been sentenced to hard labor.
5. Adoption of a division line between the war industries in which women should be employed and those in which they should not.

In the adoption of these principles, applied in many instances to pending labor disputes, the board, of which former President Wm. H. Taft and Frank P. Walsh are joint chairmen, has not hesitated to go beyond the rival claims of the employers and the employees.

This was notably the case in the announcement by the board of its decision in the dispute involving 3,000 employees in eight plants at Waynesboro, Pa. In this case the board established 40 cents an hour as the minimum wage to be paid any class of workers, including common laborers, on the theory that less than that amount was not a living wage. By living wage, it was explained, the board means "the minimum rate of wage to permit the worker and his family to subsist in health and comfort."

Application of the basic eight hour day was ordered in settlement of labor disputes at the Worthington Pump and Machinery Company and Blake-Knowles plants, East Cambridge, Mass., and the Snow plant at Buffalo. Previous wage awards for these plants were approved by the entire board.

Tuesday, July 23, was fixed as the date for determination by the board of what is a minimum living wage for workers generally and for a decision as to general application of the eight hour standard for a day's work.

In the Waynesboro case the board granted all wage increases sought by skilled workers and made the lowest rate for unskilled men 40 cents an hour instead of 30, as the men requested. This means increases of as much as 81 per cent. for low paid men.

"BOOZE OR COAL?" CHOICE.

National Coal Association Puts Question Up to Congress.

Washington.—A demand for immediate nation-wide prohibition to avert a coal shortage next winter was made by the National Coal Association, representing bituminous coal operators with an annual production of 400,000,000 tons.

"In the opinion of a representative committee of operators, which comprises in its membership delegates from virtually every large coal producing field in the nation, the country cannot have both booze and sufficient coal next winter," said a statement issued by the association.

"Nor can the country keep booze in the mining sections now and have enough coal later on," it continued. "The liquor traffic is curtailing coal production, and the time has come to eliminate it if there is to be the substantial increase in coal output the war program demands."

Wanted—A Soldier

By Mona Cowles

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tom Conklin was stationed somewhere in the East, in the United States, with a dozen, or more other young men in khaki, guarding an important railroad bridge, placed on the map beside a venerable old town, the proudest boast of which was its blue-blood, its historic old graveyard and its Carnegie library, which contained a number of volumes quite beyond the usual allotment for a town of such small population.

To any normal man in khaki, and to Tom Conklin, specially, there are things that would recommend a town more instantly than blue blood, graveyards and libraries. There may have been pretty girls in the town. In fact, there were, and those pretty girls were patriotic, but their patriotism took the form of knitting innumerable woolen mufflers and wristlets and aviators' helmets rather than in actually conversing with or cheering the homesick hours of any of the little group of men in khaki who were guarding the bridge by day and night. Lecturers came to that town every once in a while to deliver talks about "What We Are Doing for the Soldier Boys Over There," and the men on the bridge were given free tickets to these entertainments. But Tom Conklin had little taste for war lectures. He was getting enough of the gloom there on the bridge, and he was not enough of an antiquarian to appreciate the charm of the graveyard. As for the blue blood—well, perhaps he hadn't enough blue blood in those thoroughly American veins of his to have made it worth while for any of those blue-blooded ones to make his acquaintance.

In towns such as the one in the West where he had been raised, he knew how differently he and his pals on the bridge would have been received. He had to swallow hard sometimes as he thought of his own sisters and the cordial girls at home, who would have been glad enough to dance with him and his homesick companions. But perhaps such towns boasted of less distinguished history. Surely they did not have so many old inscriptions on their tombstones, nor so many books in their library.

So it was that in that library Tom found his only diversion. He was not naturally a bookworm, and at first he felt awkward as he sat there hour after hour pouring over the pages of "The Three Guardsmen" or "The Count of Monte Cristo."

Others came and went in the library, but he sat there hour after hour, almost glad that no one spoke to him, for had they done so he might have felt that he was unwelcome even there. But there was one reader beside himself who lingered long and came often. And that other person was a girl—young, and, it seemed to Tom, very pretty. Sometimes he watched her face as she poured over the dusty volume before her, and wondered if she were as blue-blooded as her townspeople. He watched her face as it registered the pleasure or disappointment she derived from what she was reading.

Then one day the girl let drop a pencil, and Tom, with his pulse beating at a rate that startled him, sprang from his chair and half way across the room to pick it up for her. The girl smiled kindly at him, and then, apparently looking to see whether anyone were looking on, thanked him for the courtesy. All that she said was, "I thank you very much," with a pretty accent on the very "I," but Tom felt that he had found a friend. It was the first time a girl in the town had spoken to him. He looked about to see that no one was looking, and said: "You seem to be a great reader, too," for in his own estimation he had recently put himself in the class of bookworm.

After that the girl always bowed to him when she saw him, and sometimes when the librarian came at hand she exchanged little comments about the weather. Gradually they found it convenient to take seats nearer, till finally they habitually sat at opposite sides of the same table.

One rainy evening, when it was darker than usual at closing hour of the library, Tom had the temerity to hold the door open for the girl and to open her umbrella for her. He had no umbrella of his own, naturally, and instead of taking hers from him, the girl asked whether he would not hold the umbrella over himself, too. They walked along, the fog and rain shielded them from the gaze of townsfolk, who would surely have been surprised to see a soldier walking with one of the "nice girls" of the town.

Again on a rainy day, when Tom and the girl had been reading till closing time, they walked down the street together under the girl's umbrella.

"Don't you ever grow tired of sitting there, pouring over those books?" Tom asked. He himself was frankly weary of it. He came there now only for the sake of the smile that he knew the girl would give him.

"Yes, I do," she said; "and very discouraged. You see, I'm looking for a soldier."

Tom caught his breath and laughed. The girl laughed back and looked teasingly into his eyes.

"Not the kind of soldier you think I mean," she said. "I'm looking for a Revolutionary soldier. You see, our family are newcomers here. We've been here only since my great-grandfather was a young man. Most of the best people in town have always lived here; that is, since colonial times. I'm so anxious to belong to the Patriots' society," she went on to explain; "but to do that I must prove descent from an ancestor who fought in the Revolution. I've been searching through the old records and family histories, and I thought I'd find one sure; but—I wouldn't let any of the people here know it—I don't believe any of my ancestors did fight in the Revolution. You don't know how much it means to me to find that soldier. Those people are so patriotic that they think more of having Revolutionary ancestors than of having money or prominence."

Tom straightened himself up under the umbrella. "Do you mean to tell me that those people would think all that of some remote, forgotten soldier of '76, when they have soldiers of 1918—real, flesh-and-blood, homesick, heart-sick fellows—right out there on their own bridge; that they—"

"I know," said the girl almost in a whisper. "They haven't done a thing for you boys, but—this more cheerfully—they're talking of having a special series of prayer meetings for you."

Tom stood still and held the girl under the umbrella by the arm, and looked at her in the rain.

"You can't be like them. Honestly, you must understand, you must know, that men that have been used to a human sort of time—dances and harmless fun with nice girls, and just a little show of human concern once in a while—aren't going to be satisfied with that. If the boys of '76 came back you wouldn't treat them that way. But these people would. They wouldn't know they were patriots if they saw them, and they would warn their daughters not to speak to them in the streets. But you're not blue-blood; tell me you're not blue-blooded," he commanded.

They began to walk again. The girl was laughing a little nervously.

"No, I'm not—that's the trouble. I wanted to find that I was, but I can't find any Revolutionary ancestor, and so I can't be blue-blooded. That's the test."

There was a silence as they walked on in the rain. Then the girl touched the arm of the soldier at her side over so lightly.

"Would you care to drop in for supper at our house?" she asked. "Mother would be so glad. I'll tell her I could not find the soldier of '76, but that I have found a patriot of 1918. I know mother will like you better. Mother is really very human."

Ten days later something happened in the town by the bridge that surprised everyone. A dance was given at the home of one of the leading citizens—not one of the very oldest families, but still one highly respectable and conservative—and the guests of honor were a dozen or so men in khaki who lived in a tent on the bridge. All the pretty girls were invited, and enough other men to make couples equal. It was an early dance, with a late supper following, and at the supper the leading judge made a little speech about the importance of appreciating the work of "our own American patriots right in our midst," instead of thinking so much about the patriots who had long gone to rest in the old burying ground.

A toast, drunk off in grape juice punch, was proposed to "the little tent on the bridge," and a weekly dancing class was organized, with the soldier boys as honorary members, which meant that they would be exempt from dues. And just as the supper was over and the guests were going back into the drawing room for one last dance—a "Home Sweet Home" before they all left—something else happened.

The daughter of the house—one of the prettiest girls in town—was presented with a bunch of white orange blossoms, which is the conventional way in that small town of announcing an engagement. And the man in khaki who sat beside her rose with her on his arm and bowed to the guests around him, and smiled as if he were the happiest man anywhere in the U. S. A.

HEINZ URGES SIMPLICITY

War-time Brings Necessity For Economy and Earnest Conservation Effort.

AVOID ALL EXTRAVAGANCE

At Public Banquets and in Home Entertainment Needs of the Nation Should be Considered.

Howard Heinz, Federal Food Administrator for Pennsylvania, made an emphatic statement regarding the waste of food which he believes may occur in too many instances, in private homes through elaborate dinner parties, and at public entertainments in the shape of costly banquets. He said:

"At intervals, for months past, I have read in the columns of the daily newspapers of the state accounts of elaborate private entertainments in the way of luncheons, dinners and similar functions in which these doubts are, in at least some instances, a great and unnecessary waste. The food is often prepared and served on such occasions in such a way that it is practically impossible to utilize any of the remains of the banquet or make available for use the food in any other form."

"Our people should refrain from elaborate dinners and social entertainments where costly meals are a feature. This class of social functions should be marked by war-time simplicity. In all things there should be strict observance of Food Administration rules. The number of extra meals should be minimized. They are, for the most part, unnecessary."

"We are at war. The families of England have meat only twice a week. In France the population between 17 and 60 years of age is permitted to have only one and a half slices of bread per day per person. To win the war we must not only preach conservation, but practice it."

"I am not only opposing the idea of private dinners, public banquets or social functions, but I insist that war-time simplicity should prevail at them by moderation in the number of courses served. I urge upon our people that dinners, luncheons and banquets should be an example to the world of rigid conservation of food. Portions should be smaller. They should be prepared and served in accordance with food laws. Articles of diet not on the restricted list should be used. "At commercial and business gatherings an example should be set and a menu in accordance with the strict requirements of the war-times in which we live be offered."

"Food waste is a crime. It is a crime against the starving millions of Europe, who are asking us for food. It is a crime against our soldiers and the soldiers of our Allies, who are fighting for us on the battle fields of Europe."

Identified.

The two American war correspondents were gazing at the conflict when Kinkletop caught sight of a gallant officer leading a charge.

"His face is strangely familiar," he said. "That Greek lieutenant, I mean."

"Yes," said Blithers. "He used to run the boot-black stand in that barber shop over on Steenth avenue and Gump-lah street."

And just then the noble warrior dashed madly past, and forgetting himself under the excitement of the moment, turned and cried aloud to his advancing troops:

Soak celery and cabbage 15 or 20 minutes before using so that any insects or worms will come out.

Potatoes, too, may well be soaked in their jackets.

Harry Meckley, of Abbottstown, was severely hurt about the jaw and mouth while helping to haul grain on the farm on William Wagner in Berwick township. Meckley was on the wagon and had finished loading it and was fastening the tie pole, when the party who was helping to fasten it thought it was securely fastened, let his hold on the pole go causing it to spring upward and strike Meckley in the face causing the injury.
